Facing redundancy? Not sure what to do next? Working Wales can help.

Redundancy can be very difficult, both emotionally and financially but support is available. Whatever your situation, Working Wales is here to help you navigate your way through redundancy so you can move forward with confidence.

You may need to get straight back into employment? Our expert advisers can help you:

- Search for a job and match your existing skills to current vacancies.
- Update your CV.
- Apply for jobs and support you through interviews.

Perhaps you see this as your opportunity to evaluate and change direction?

If you want to retrain or update your skills and need financial support, you could be entitled to funding through the ReAct scheme.

We can check your eligibility and you could receive up to £1,500 towards training costs and up to £200 in additional support.

When you're offered a job, your new employer could receive up to £3000 for taking you on and up to £1000 towards your training costs.

For further information and advice and to check eligibility for ReAct, call Working Wales FREE on 0800 028 4844 or visit workingwales.gov.wales/how-we-can-help/redundancy-support

*ReAct helps people affected by redundancy or unemployment gain new skills and encourages recruiting employers to employ a redundant or unemployed worker.
